TOFTigers HOSTING WILDLIFE CONSERVANCIES WORKSHOP

TOFTigers is gathering together many of India's leading tiger experts and wildlife scientists in Panna Tiger reserve this October, for a two day workshop, under the guidance of Tiger ecologist, Dr Raghu Chundawat. The aim is to consider ways in which 'conservation dependent' economies, like nature tourism, can be used to save and restore wilderness habitats outside of Protected Areas in India - especially those biodiverse areas - highlighted by the recent 2018 Tiger Census - that are suffering most from deforestation and wildlife extinction. Full details will be published after the workshop.

I firmly believe that TOFTigers is doing a spectacular job in bringing various Travel Industry partners viz. resorts, lodges and retreats into the realm of Responsible Tourism. The team is working tirelessly and with utmost dedication to educate and certify different properties to embrace various eco-friendly practices in a real sense..
